McADOO ASKS BANKS FOR THREE BILLIONS

CERTIFICATE ISSUE PRELIMINARY TO THIRD LOAN.

APRIL BOND SALE LIKELY

WASHINGTON, February 7.—Three billion dollars will be raised in advance of the third Liberty loan, which probably will be opened in April, by sale of certificates of indebtedness under a plan looking to systematic investment by every bank in these short-term securities.

A comprehensive scheme for preparing the way for the third loan, announced by Secretary McAdoo, provides for the issuance of $500,000,000 of these certificates every two weeks, until the total runs to $2,500,000,000, by the middle of March. Every national bank, state bank and trust company is asked to set aside each week about 1 per cent of its gross resources for investment in the certificates in telegrams sent out here that McAdoo.

The first of the $500,000,000 certificate issues under this plan was announced last night. About half of the certificates are to be sold in the first week of the month, and the balance in the second week. The certificates of this and other future issues will be received generally in payment of Liberty loan bonds.

With the $500,000,000 in certificates held by banks before the actual campaign opens, that sum would be guaranteed in the first week of the month, and the balance in the second week. The certificates of this and other future issues will be received generally in payment of Liberty loan bonds.

Some Certificates Taken.

Already $500,000,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness have been sold in anticipation of the third loan, and about $1,000,000,000 certificates are outstanding to be received in payment of income and excess profit taxes by next June.

Secretary McAdoo's appeal to banks to set aside in installments 10 per cent of their resources, was urgent. "We are approaching a critical test on the battle fronts of Europe," he telegraphed each bank. "If the banks, which are the first line of financial defense, fail to support the government fully in its necessary operations, we shall imperil America's army and America's safety. I know that I have only one recourse, to command the support of every patriotic bank and banker. This is a supreme duty of patriotism. May I count on you to do your part and to telegraph me immediately my expense that you will."

The secretary also pleaded for economy of credits by banks and promotion of campaigns of economy among bank patrons.

"There is a steady growth in the movement for economy," his message said. "It should be able to participate in the campaign for economy, which means economy of credit as well as economy of expenditure, to reach their customers to save and accumulate the means to buy government certificates and bonds. By this method, distribution of treasury certificates should be made possible which will result in the purchasing of bonds at least part of their purchases and furnish the means of making the payments for the third Liberty loan without undue strain."

Wide Distribution Planned.

In explaining the plan, Secretary McAdoo said: "I desire to postpone great disturbance of the banking business will insure a wide distribution of the bonds throughout the country. Certificate issues in the past have been absorbed largely by the bigger banks. Secretary McAdoo now hopes to distribute this burden more equally over the whole financial fabric of the country."

The huge sum thus gathered to government account will not pile up in the treasury, but will remain largely in the banks designated as government depositories, subject to draft by the government. In this way the $3,000,000,000 can be accumulated, ready for use as needed for big war expenses, now more than $1,000,000,000 a month, without great disturbance of the banking business it is asserted.

WORK OF THE NAVY LEAGUE

(By Mrs. Horace C. Stillwell)

WASHINGTON, February 7.—The national headquarters of the Navy League are at H and Sixteenth streets, N. W. In the beautiful house once occupied by former Senator Guggenheim. In these days of pressing need for officers the government has requisitioned most of the large office buildings, hotels and apartment houses. The stranger to Washington need feel no surprise, therefore, when he finds the particular department which he wishes to visit, situated in an old mansion, four stories high, heated by open wood fires.

Such were the surroundings in the office of the national headquarters of the Navy League. I found H. R. Scovill, assistant secretary, a most willing subject for an interview, and the Navy League campaign for membership was opened in Indiana this week by their representative, formerly of the Kansas City Star, "and one of the best organizers ever sent out." Life of the Navy League of Indiana, Indianapolis, who is the state chairman of the Navy League of Indiana. Together they are working to form branches of the Navy League in county and city, throughout the state.

Purpose of Organization.

The object and the purpose of the Navy League is "to acquire and spread before the citizens of the United States information as to the conditions of the naval forces and equipment of the United States, and to awaken interest and co-operation in all matters tending to the improvement of the navy." It was founded November 2, 1913, as the "United States Navy League," and was organized by the navy during the civil war, but who during the stagnation of the navy had been established between the civil war and the beginning of the Spanish war.

Up to the declaration of the world war the league, like many other national organizations, had not known national life. It was a collection of many small, local organizations, which were kept alive and largely financed by the generosity of Colonel Thompson, who served as president from 1913 until his death last week, when he resigned because of ill health. The Hon. W. Cameron Forbes, of Boston, was elected to take his place. The Navy League has been a steady stream of applicants at this active headquarters of the national committee of the Navy League.

We had an interesting evening with John Lind, who was President Wilson's personal representative in Mexico. He said: "Madero was a good man, would have been good for Mexico, but he was a dreamer and not much of a business man."

Huerta, he said, was a slave driver. The people of Mexico were not educated, yet intelligent, and in time will work out a satisfactory solution of their own government, he thought. Mr. Lind is accompanied by his charming wife, Mrs. Lind, who is a native of Indiana. She is a woman of her own mind, who is congenial to her surroundings. These women, the league believes, can bring all the patriotic effort to the particular task of the state councils of defense with their 5,000 local councils, covering all the important industrial centers in the United States. They are peculiarly fitted for the task. They not only reach into every factory town, but come into personal contact with skilled labor. It will be their duty to rouse every competent artisan in the country. The states have already entered energetically into the campaign. Before it is over we intend to have not only 250,000 workmen ready to serve in the shipyards, but so many more that that the nation can select the best, that as the need for workers grows the navy will fill with a band of steady, earnest toilers, putting their hearts and their muscles into their jobs for the sake of the country."

DEFENDS ROADS' WORK.

Union Pacific Head Denies Effort to Discredit Federal Control.

OMAHA, Neb., February 7.—E. E. Calvin, president of the Union Pacific railroad, has denied that railroad managers are mismanaging the railroads of the country to discredit government ownership.

The charge made in Washington Tuesday is absurd, he said. "It is but another device to support the demands of the Brotherhoods for increased wages. The railroads could not do a thing of that kind. The manager who attempted to do so would have taken the confidence of thousands of employees, who would be up in arms and would blazon to the world the fact that they had been ordered to cripple the railroads. It would be necessary to corrupt Mr. Lee, the organization along with the rest of them."

Maud Adams at English's.

Maud Adams in J. M. Barrie's new comedy "A Kiss for Cinderella," opens at English's tonight for an engagement that continues Friday and Saturday, with the usual Saturday matinee. In this piece Barrie has given free rein to his fancy in modernizing the oldest of all fairy tales, that of Cinderella and the glass slipper. Miss Adams' role is that of a London slaver who, as her wartime "bit," adopts four little orphan babies. She is an imaginative little thing—Barrie calls her Miss "Thing"—and tells the children she is Cinderella. And she has a dream in which she sees herself as Cinderella at a grand ball in competition with the beauties for the hand of the prince. The dream is reproduced and is the big scene of the play. The concluding scene shows the little girl recovering her health in a hospital where she receives a visit from her real prince, the big policeman. A number of well-known Joseph E. Reed, who plays the role of John Bloodgood, a millionaire manufacturer, in the drama, "One Girl's Experience," at the Park next week, had his first professional engagement with John McCullough. Previous to that he held a $1,000 position in the treasury department, which he resigned to become an actor for $15 a week. He relates an incident that occurred at the Lincoln theatre, Washington, to appear with Mr. McCullough's company. Then he found that he had been assigned to enact ten different parts in a different style of ancient costume. His first work was as a herald in "Troilus and Cressida" and he had one line to speak, "Room for the Tynarch."

FIRST WOMAN WITNESS IN BOLO PASHA TRIAL

MADAME LA FARGUE TELLS OF BUSINESS DEAL.

NEWSPAPER MEN ARE HEARD

PARIS, February 7.—Appearance of Madame Marie LaFargue, at one time an intimate friend of Abbas Hilmi, the former khedive of Egypt, created a mild stir in the Bolo Pasha trial yesterday. She was the first woman witness.

Madame LaFargue's testimony was principally to the effect that Bolo, notwithstanding his claim that he never kept business books, played the part of a shrewd and exacting business man in making a loan to her on one occasion. Bolo denied making the loan.

Activities in Switzerland.

Yesterday's session was devoted almost entirely to hearing corroborative testimony and M. Casella, the Matin's correspondent in Switzerland, and M. Mouthon, editor-in-chief of the Journal, the newspaper men described in great detail the activities in Switzerland of Bolo Pasha, his relations with the former khedive of Egypt and the purchase of stock in the Journal.

Planned Catholic Bank.

One of Bolo Pasha's objects, Casella testified, was to bring about the formation of a Catholic bank with the late Marquis Jules Della Chiesa, a brother of Pope Benedict, and the ex-khedive of Egypt at its head, which was to be a full size and stands 4 feet 10 inches in height; formerly $174.50, sale price now $139.75. Ladies' pedestal toilet table as shown, 48x22-inch base with one 4x24-inch mirror and two 20x10-inch side mirrors; reduced $145.00 to $115.00. Bench and chairs to match suite if desired at big reduction in price.

LABOR NEEDED FOR SHIPS

Walter S. Gifford, managing director of the council of national defense, has sent the following message to Will H. Hays, chairman of the Indiana state council of defense, discussing the need for workers for ships:

"The workers that are going to build the nation's ships are scattered across the United States. Our immediate problem is to carry to them the message that to win the war our first need is ships, and to build ships, our first need is labor. We must have the best artisans in the United States. We must have the skilled steady man, mature in character and perhaps in years, who is willing to move his family from a cherished home and break up comfortable habits and fond associations for a new abode—who is willing to make these sacrifices, because he realizes that the success of this nation and the allies is at stake and only his work, earnest and faithful, can bring about our victory to the great cause of liberty."

"To reach these men and inspire them to patriotic effort is the particular task of the state councils of defense with their 5,000 local councils, covering all the important industrial centers in the United States. They are peculiarly fitted for the task. They not only reach into every factory town, but come into personal contact with skilled labor. It will be their duty to rouse every competent artisan in the country. The states have already entered energetically into the campaign. Before it is over we intend to have not only 250,000 workmen ready to serve in the shipyards, but so many more that that the nation can select the best, that as the need for workers grows the navy will fill with a band of steady, earnest toilers, putting their hearts and their muscles into their jobs for the sake of the country."
